

Alice's Reopening!

Jimmy Kuhn '27

Alice's Restaurant was closed down earlier this semester but due to campus wide resentment at the decision, plans to reopen Alice's are underway!

Upon hearing about this decision, I managed to secure several interviews with the important people who changed their minds, listened to the students, and made the decision to reopen Alice's.

An interview with an anonymous member of the administration was particularly enlightening. He stated "We were wrong! Tearing down Alice's had an terrible impact on our community that we in the administration never could have possibly foreseen. We plan to reopen Alice's and make it the exact kind of place we think the Goucher student body will cherish and flourish in."

Plans are not only to reopen Alice's, it will be renovated and be better than ever! According to an anonymous worker at Mal Appetite, the plans to reopen Alice's include additional features such as a jungle gym, a water slide, and possibly even a ball pit. Of course, due to the dangers of such equipment, a Campus Security officer will be on duty at all times to supervise the play area. The area also plans to be illuminated with bright white fluorescent lights.

A member of administration, who feels they are really connected to what the needs of the student body are, had this to say: "It seems to us, students now want a play area suited for 5-10 year olds, not necessarily a relaxing spot on campus where they can study and hang out with their friends."

I for one am relieved that the Goucher administration was modest enough to be willing to admit their mistakes and to be proactive to fix what they have broken. It shows humility and a mature attitude on their part. Their commitment to listening to students' needs and giving them a space to grow and become functioning members of society is being practiced here and now. Thank you Goucher administration.
